

WESTERLY'S ESCAPED PRISONERS

Still Among the Missing—Took Advantage of Spring Lock—Bannon Liquor Nuisance Case On Trial—The Ciscos and Di Fonti Under Bonds—New Fire Alarm System Installed—Raid at Charlestown.

The two young fellows who gave their names as Pryor and Brown, and who walked out of the Western police station during the absence of the keeper, are still enjoying freedom. They were held for the theft of the automobile of James Hanley, the Providence brewer, and were found with the stolen goods. Monday morning Mr. Hanley's chauffeur came to Western and returned with the automobile to Providence. The chauffeur said the car is a new one, just bought by Mr. Hanley, and cost over $5,000. It arrived last Thursday and had not been run three hundred miles. Mr. Hanley decided to have the car in a garage, other than the one he formerly patronized, and the chauffeur was not known to the right force at the garage. About 10 o'clock Sunday night the chauffeur took a friend to the garage to show him the new car. As it was not in sight he asked the forman of the garage where Mr. Hanley's car was. He replied that the chauffeur had taken the car out. Then the real chauffeur realized that the car had been stolen. Two men called for the car, stating that Mr. Hanley wanted to take a ride. One of them represented himself as the chauffeur and took the car away.

got busy and reported the case to the police and within a couple of hours the thieves had been gathered in by Westerly's chief of police. Later when report came that the birds had flown the police inspectors praised the chief for his work, just the same. He had done a good job in securing the auto without a scratch or wound to the prisoners escape from prisons that are more secure and more carefully guarded than the apology for a police station in the cellar of the town hall. Police Officer Barber, who was left in charge of Brown and Pryor while Chief Brandfield went to get them some lunch, has been on duty at Watch Hill during the season, and is substituting while the regular officers of the force are on vacation. When urgent telephone call came for the chief, he left his charges and went to summon him to the telephone, and when he returned the station house was vacant. Before leaving the building, Officer Barber tried the door from the outside and found it secure. He did not happen to know that there was a spring lock on the door and that it could be readily opened from the inside and without a key.

The trial of Thomas J. Bannon, charging that his drug store in Main street was a liquor nuisance, began Monday morning, before Judge Brown in the superior court for Washington county at West Kingston. Mr. Bannon was indicted by the grand jury at the previous session of the courts and has been under bonds since that time. After the trial was commenced, Judge Sweeney, counsel for the defendant, asked that the jury be permitted to view the premises, so that a more intelligent conception of the drug store might be had and that it might not be confused with other places that are before the court on a like charge. The request was granted.

The jurors, in charge of Sheriff Wilcox and Deputy Sheriff Mitchell, accompanied by Assistant Attorney General Cross and Town Solicitor Azarov for the prosecution, and Judge Sweeney for defense, arrived here on the 12:30 train and went direct to the Bannon drug store, where they made an examination that lasted almost five minutes. The jurors were served lunch and returned to West Kingston on the 1:30 train.

This case was not brought in the ordinary way, through the Third district court, but direct to the grand jury. At that time there was prevalence of wood alcohol poison cases, and some evidence to the effect that poisoned whiskey was purchased at the Bannon store. All the evidence obtainable for the purpose of prosecution, including the opinion of Coroner Brown of Norwich, in favor of the whiskey being pure, was presented in the grand jury and considered by that body. The jury brought in an indictment against Bannon, charging him with maintaining a nuisance. The case was ready for trial at that term of the court, but it was adjourned to the next term, when it will be resumed this (Tuesday) morning.

John Cisco and his wife, Caterino Cisco, were arraigned on an indictment charging them with keeping a liquor nuisance in Westerly. Both pleaded not guilty. Upon their representation that they had no attorney and no money to hire them, the court assigned Judge John W. Sweeney to defend them, and furnished a bond of $1,000 for their appearance when called into court.

The Ciscos also entered pleas of not guilty to indictments for manslaughter, in the alleged sale of whiskey containing wood alcohol that caused the death of Daniel Sullivan of White Rock. The bonds in this case are $3,000.

John DiFonti, by his counsel, Judge Sweeney, entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment charging him with keeping a liquor nuisance, and furnished a bond of $1,000 for appearance.

To the charge of manslaughter, in selling the alleged wood alcohol whiskey that caused the death of Michael Riley, he pleaded not guilty, and bonds were fixed at $3,000. Judge Sweeney gave notice of demurrer in both cases.

Alfred Carlson pleaded not guilty to an indictment that charged him with maintaining a liquor nuisance in Westerly. He was sentenced to six months in the state workhouse and to pay all costs.

William Stinson pleaded not guilty to the indictment of keeping a liquor nuisance in Westerly. A bond of $1,000 was furnished.

One case against Joseph S. Grills, charging him with embezzlement, was continued to the November term. Another case on the same charge was assigned for trial this week.

The new and modern fire alarm for the Westerly fire district has been installed and is almost ready for test and delivery to the committee representing the district. This new system will receive its power from the Westerly Light & Power Co., and will require more attention than did the old system. It will be necessary to have familiarity with the switchboard and to give direct attention to the base of the system at least every twenty-two hours, or twice a week, and will require considerable service from at least one man.

The old system was cared for by Chief Engineer Cottrell, and naturally upon him will devolve the care of the new system, and more of his time will be taken up in the work than could reasonably be expected from him under the munificent salary of $195 a year.

A general increase of the efficiency of the department in establishing outlying hose reel houses, in addition to the Central fire house, and the modernized fire engine.

terminal of the general equipment, besides the alarm system, will increase the duties of the chief engineer. The fire district has been enlarged, giving the chief a larger area to cover, but as yet there has been no hint that any addition is to be made to the $100 per annum.

One of the hose wagons is now in Providence being fitted with a chemical tank and attendant equipment, at the suggestion of the special committee having in charge the matter of increasing the efficiency of the fire department. This change is not approved by all the experienced members of the local department, although the chief of the Providence department has declared its practicability.

It is set up that the wagon loaded with hose, ready for service, weighed 3,500 pounds, a heavy load for a pair of horses to draw up Quarry hill, or other steep grades within the fire district. The chemical addition will increase the weight at least 500 pounds, making a total of 4,000, or over a ton for each horse to draw at a fire, and the animals are supposed to go at top speed.

It is further argued that the hose wagon was originally built to carry a smaller load, and it is believed will not stand the strain of nearly half a ton of increased weight.

Firemen are discussing at a special meeting of the fire district, stress was laid upon the importance of fire protection on Quarry hill, and the chemical wagon was suggested as a remedy. It has been proven that the wagon, without the heavy chemical attachment, was slow in reaching fires in that section, owing to the unusually steep grade, and the speed cannot be improved by increasing the load.

Firemen also declare that by the time the combination hose and chemical wagon reaches a fire in that section, it will be too late for the effective use of chemicals, and that water will be used.

ger, fourteen other bottles of beer and one quart of whiskey.
